

Parent Resource

Observing Nature in Your Neighborhood

Children of all ages are naturally curious — asking questions like “what’s that?” and “why?” and “what if...?” These questions are the foundation of thinking like a scientist, and there is no better place to encourage children to explore, observe and let their minds wander than in nature.

Click source link for more information and fun nature activities!

Source: PBS for Parents