 Tell us about yourself (tell us about your background, your past experiences, and what makes you a good candidate for the position; include any information that you think appropriate and important for us to know):

I recently completed my second year at CSUF, and given my lifelong involvement in social justice work, I am eager to reconnect with that passion. Growing up in San Diego, I was active in Girl Scouts and ASB, which fueled my desire to help others. In 2018, the tragic event at Parkland High School deeply affected me and intensified my commitment to raising awareness about gun violence prevention, bullying, and overall safety at my school. This led me to become a board member of March For Our Lives, the student-led organization founded by Parkland students, where I advocated for gun violence prevention in my community for two years. Following this, I interned for two city council members in my city who shared my values, learning about community outreach and securing my first job. I then worked for the Minority Humanitarian Foundation, a nonprofit organization assisting refugees and asylum seekers released from ICE detention facilities.

1. The purpose of the Social Justice and Equity Commission is to promote fairness, inclusivity, and equal opportunities for all individuals within the community. It aims to address and dismantle systemic inequalities and injustices by advocating for marginalized groups, implementing policies that foster equity, and educating the community about social justice issues. The commission works to create a more just and equitable environment where everyone can thrive, regardless of their background or circumstances.
2. Bringing awareness and education on social justice issues to students at CSUF is crucial because it fosters a more inclusive and equitable campus environment. By educating students about these issues, we empower them to recognize and challenge systemic inequalities, fostering a culture of empathy, respect, and activism. This awareness helps prepare students to become socially conscious leaders and advocates in their future careers and communities. Additionally, promoting social justice on campus ensures that all students, regardless of their background, feel valued and supported, which enhances their overall educational experience and personal development.
3. For the next year, my goals for the Social Justice and Equity Commission include fostering a more inclusive campus culture, increasing student engagement in social justice initiatives, and advocating for tangible policy changes. One key idea is to launch a series of workshops and seminars focused on topics such as anti-racism, LGBTQ+ rights, disability advocacy, and economic inequality. These events would feature guest speakers, interactive discussions, and practical training sessions to equip students with the knowledge and skills to effect change.
4. To promote the activities and events of the Social Justice and Equity Commission, I would implement a multi-faceted approach leveraging both digital and in-person strategies. First, I would utilize social media platforms like Instagram, to create engaging content, including event announcements, educational posts, and live updates. Collaborating with popular student influencers and organizations on campus could amplify our reach. Additionally, I would design eye-catching flyers and posters to be displayed around campus in high-traffic areas and distribute informational brochures at student centers and dorms. Hosting informational booths and pop-up events in central locations would provide face-to-face engagement opportunities, allowing us to directly communicate with students about upcoming events. Lastly, I would work closely with faculty and student organizations to integrate our events into their communications, ensuring our message reaches a broad and diverse audience.
