Child develops capacity to understand details and ideas from age-appropriate text presented by adults

Making a cut-and-paste sight words collage is an easy way for your child to practice sight or spelling words.

Materials Needed:

- Old magazines
- Children's scissors
- School glue
- Paper
- Sight word or spelling words to practice

Directions

1 Explain to your child that you'll be cutting letters out of magazines to spell familiar sight or spelling words. Make a list of sight or spelling words with your child. If your child is young, use your child's name.

2 Ask your child to pick a word from the list and then search for letters from that word in a magazine. Have your child cut out the letters from the magazine then assemble and glue them into place on a sheet of paper.

3 If your child tires of the activity easily or finds it difficult to focus, help your child cut out the letters, or even pre-cut out letters before inviting your child to play.
