Developmental information about the share:

Young children usually love to help their families with household chores. Taking part in familiar, daily routines helps children develop a sense of self-efficacy and team-work when chores are done together. Young toddlers are beginning to understand the concepts of “Mine” and “Not mine”. While using laundry as a learning opportunity may make the chore a little longer, children can learn to sort (compare and contrast characteristics), colors, textures, graphics, etc.

Some fun variations:

- 1) Intentionally sabotage the piles to see if children notice the difference.
- 2) Add non-laundry toys to the pile and see if your child can put them where they belong.
